* DR. MARY WALKER LOOKS LIKE "A GENTLEMAN OF THE OLD SCHOOL" *

Dr. Mary Walker.

This is Dr. Mary Walker, the famous advocate of men's clothes for women as she looked when making a recent call on President Taft. She was a surgeon throughout the civil war and adopted men's clothes for convenience, comfort and health in the field. A special act of congress enabled her to wear the clothes she chose. She recently has been living at Oswego, New York.

'TISN'T LIBEL TO SAY A MAN'S A HOG AT TABLE

New York, Jan 4.—It isn't libelous to say a man is in the habit of having four canvass back ducks cooked for a meal, eating one and using juices of three for gravy, and ordering a basket of champagne at a sitting, and drinking only the top glass from each bottle.

Justice Vernon M. Davis, of the state supreme court, has decided this momentous question by throwing out of court the suit of William H. Dailey, San Francisco, mining man, for $100,000 against the Bobbs-Merrill Publishing company and Gellett Burgess, the novelist.

In "The Heart Line," Burgess described the "best feeder of the Palace Hotel, San Francisco," telling what he ate and drank. He called his character "Dailey."
